Author index to Volume 17

Altman, Morris, Business cycle volatility and economic growth: the historical record, 1870–1986, 4:561–577

Arestis, P., and I. Biefang-Frisancho Mariscal, The endogenous money stock: empirical observations from the United Kingdom, 4:545–559

Arora, Harjit. See Hamid Mohtadi.

Auerbach, Paul. See Peter Skott.

Bahmani-Oskooee, Mohsen, The long-run determinants of the U.S. trade balance revisited, 3:457–465

Ballard, Bill, How Keynes became a Post Keynesian, 3:325–335

Biefang-Frisancho Mariscal, I. See P. Arestis.

Brockway, George P., Why a low interest rate is the proper preventive of inflation, 1:153–158

Brown-Collier, Elba K., and Bruce E. Collier, What Keynes really said about deficit spending, 3:341–355

Collier, Bruce E. See Elba K. Brown-Collier.

Cottrell, Allin, Endogenous money and the multiplier, 1:111–120

Cunningham, Steven R., and Jon Vilasuso, Is Keynesian demand management policy still viable?, 2:187–210

Davidson, Paul, Mini-symposium on "Is Keynesian demand management policy still viable?" Introduction, 2:185–186

Dawson, Richard M., The Shacklean nature of Commons's reasonable value, 1:33–44

Deprez, Johan, Rediscovering the missing visionary of the middle way: a review of Skidelsky on Keynes, 3:313–324

Downe, Edward A., and William Pan, Rejoinder to Douglas Stutsman, 1:137

Downward, Paul, A Post Keynesian perspective of U.K. manufacturing pricing, 3:403–426

Drago, Robert, The New American Workplace by Eileen Appelbaum and Rosemary Batt: a review, 4:515–524

Eisner, Robert, Challenge to the natural rate doctrine, 1:159–161

Eisner, Robert, Keynes is not dead, just drugged and dormant, 2:211–229

Epstein, Gerald, Keynesian demand management is alive and ill, 2:397–310

Fazzari, Steven M., Why doubt the effectiveness of Keynesian fiscal policy?, 2:231–248

Galbraith, James K., John Maynard Nosferatu, 2:249–260

Harvey, John T., Circular causation and the Veblenian dichtomy in the General Theory*: an introduction to institutionalist method*, 1:69–89

Hay, Donald and Helen Louri, An empirical note on the investment behavior of U.K. firms, 1960–85, 4:579–591

Karunaratne, Neil Dias, Paradox of hysteresis and real-wage flexibility in Australia, 4:503–514

Keen, Steve, Finance and economic breakdown: modeling Minsky's "financial insta- bility hypothesis", 4:607–635

Kim, Ki-ho, On the long-run determinants of the U.S. trade balance: a comment, 3:447–455
King, J.E., Aggregate supply and demand analysis since Keynes: a partial history, 1:3–31
Kregel, J.A., The viability of economic policy and the priorities of economic policy, 2:261–277
Louri, Helen. See Donald Hay.
Marchionatti, Roberto, Keynes and the collapse of the British cotton industry in the 1920s: a microeconomic case against laissez-faire, 3:427–445
Moggridge, D.E., In the "orth dox" tradition: Keynes never managed to become a Post Keynesian, 3:337–340
Mohtadi, Hamid, and Harjit Arora, Stagflation and monetary stabilization policies: a rejoinder, 3:469–471
Molyneux, Philip. See John Thornton.
Montgomery, Michael R., Fully inarticulate model economics: or, does math equal macro?, 1:45–68
Moore, Basil J., The demise of the Keynesian multiplier: a reply to Cottrell, 1:121–133
Moore, Basil J., Sluggish job growth: rising productivity, anemic recovery, or something else?, 3:473–477
Nagarajan, P., Stagflation and monetary stabilization policies: a comment, 3:467–468
Pan, William. See Edward A. Downe.
Podkaminer, Leon, Household behavior under "austerity" stabilization of hyperinflation: the roots of fragility, 4:593–605
Pryor, Frederic L. and Elliott Sulcove, A note on volatility, 4:525–544
Ravetz, Jerry, Economics as an elite folk science: the suppression of uncertainty, 2:165–184
Samuels, Warren J., The institutional context of the macroeconomy and demand management policy: comment on Cunningham and Vilasuso, 2:279–283
Skott, Peter, and Paul Auerbach, Cumulative causation and the "new" theories of economic growth, 3:381–402
Stutsman, Douglas, Comment on "Why does business invest?", 1:135–136
Sulcove, Elliott. See Frederic L. Pryor.
Taheri, Javid, On the persistence of high unemployment in the OECD countries: the real debt resistance hypothesis, 4:481–502
Thornton, John, and Philip Molyneux, Macroeconomic determinants of tariff policy in a developing economy: Costa Rica, 1963–92, 4:637–645
Trigg, Andrew B., On the relationship between Kalecki and the Kaleckians, 1:91–109
Vilasuso, Jon. See Steven R. Cunningham.
Watts, Martin, Divergent trends in gender segregation by occupation in the United States: 1970–92, 3:357–379
Woo-sik, Moon, An open economy model of wages and employment with an application to Korea, 1:139–152
Wray, L. Randall, Is Keynesian policy dead after all these years?, 2:285–306